

Robert Mills Papers

SOUTHEASTERN ARCHITECTURAL ARCHIVE COLLECTION 28

SCOPE and CONTENTS

Letters, diaries, and other items

1802 – 1854; 1916 – 1919

2 boxes

Papers of Robert Mills (1781-1855), considered the first native-born professional architect in the United States. Included are letters, diaries, and other items. Of special interest is a manuscript essay “The Tuscan Order” (with related drawings for buildings). Also of interest is Mills’ diary containing the manuscript “Manuel (sic) on Rail Roads”, the incomplete “Works of Robert Mills”, and sketches of towns and subjects in South Carolina. Papers also contain “Notes on Survey of Town of Newcastle” by B.H.B. Latrobe. Additionally, there are letters from Mills biographer, Helen M.P. Gallagher to collection donor Moise H. Goldstein, and letters from Mills’ sister, Sarah Lusher, and his mother Ann Smith Mills. There are also letters to his daughter Mary P. Dimitry, New Orleans, with a note by daughter Jacqueline.

Many of the documents in the collection were transcribed in Pamela Scott's microfilm project, Guide to the Papers of Robert Mills.

PROVENANCE

Papers were acquired in the early 1900s by New Orleans architect Moise H. Goldstein, perhaps from Mill's grandson, Thomas Dabney Dimitry of New Orleans. They were definitely in his possession by 1916, as letters preserved in the collection testify. Goldstein gave the papers to Howard-Tilton Library in 1948. They were eventually placed with the Manuscripts Department, and then transferred to SEAA in 1980.
