SOUTHEASTERN ARCHITECTURAL ARCHIVE
COLLECTION 39

Chapman Hyams Tomb, Metairie Cemetery, New Orleans, LA. 1915. Albert Weiblen Marble and Granite Company, Charles L. Lawhon, architect. Pencil, ink, and watercolor on illustration board.

SCOPE and CONTENTS

Project drawings, contracts, photographs, decoration samples

Ca. 1905 – 1973

92 boxes; 6 flat file drawers; 1 upright drawer

Records of the Albert Weiblen Marble and Granite Company of New Orleans. Included are project drawings and contracts for tombs and monuments, correspondence, tomb decoration samples, and project models. Founded in 1887, Weiblen grew to become one of the largest marble and granite supply houses in the south. The company also designed many commemorative monuments and tombs in New Orleans, including many of the late nineteenth century Gilded Age tombs of Metairie Cemetery. See many Weiblen drawings, etc. in SEAA's 2007 exhibit-- *Impressing the Client, 1868 – 1940*

Albert Weiblen (1857-1957), born in Wurttemberg, Germany, came to New Orleans in 1885. He worked as a stone carver for tomb builders Kursheedt and Bienvenu, eventually purchasing the company from them in 1887. He changed the name of the company to the Albert Weiblen Marble and Granite Company, which became one of the most prolific tomb and memorial builders in New Orleans and the southern United States. Albert Weiblen died in 1957, but his company continued under the direction of his daughter-in-law, Norma Merritt Weiblen until 1969 when the company was sold to Stewart Enterprises.

PROVENANCE

Records were generated and preserved by the Weiblen Company over the course of its existence until it was bought by Stewart Enterprises, Inc. in 1969. Many records were discarded, but a good deal of material was saved by long time Weiblen employees, Henri Gandolfo and Ralph Phillippi. Stewart Enterprises donated the saved records to Special Collections of Tulane Library in the 1970s, and eventually all was transferred to SEAA in 1980. Some items were given by Henri Gandolfo and Ralph Phillippi in the 1980s.
